

Teaching Assistant Training

New TA Workshop & Teaching Certificates

Phil Tietjen, Ph.D., Director of Teaching Programs Graduate School

Two Key Offerings

Teaching Certificate

New TA Workshop

New TA Workshop

- Full day in-person at the McKimmon Center
- Morning plenaries and afternoon breakout sessions
- Morning sessions cover supporting students, legal considerations, communication and active learning

New TA Workshop

- Afternoon sessions provide information on the libraries, online learning, in-person classes, grading, classroom management and advice from experienced TAs
- Priority is new TAs, however, all are welcome to attend
- Pre-register via QR code

Teaching Certificates & Workshops

- Basic and Advanced Teaching Certificates offered
- Workshops are both in-person and online
- The Teaching Certificates are open to all graduate students and postdocs with an interest in teaching

Frequently Asked Questions

Q: Is the New TA Workshop required?

A: Although not required, The Graduate School encourages individual departments or colleges to make participation a requirement so that new TAs receive information that can help them be successful in their teaching role.

Q: How do students register for the New TA Workshop?

A: Students register via <https://go.ncsu.edu/new-ta-workshop-2024> (or the QR code shown on the previous slide)

Q: How many times a year do you offer this training?

A: We provide a full-scale New TA Workshop once per year in August. We offer smaller-scale teaching workshops throughout the fall and spring semesters (and these count towards the Teaching Certificate). More info at Teaching Programs website <https://grad.ncsu.edu/professional-development/teaching-programs/>

How HR Representatives Help Us:

We appreciate the assistance of the HR representatives. You are the main connection that helps us identify who to contact about the New TA Workshop. The earlier TA hires are processed, the sooner we can let those students know about the free training that can help them succeed in their teaching role.

A handwritten-style graphic that says "Thank You" in a cursive font. The text is surrounded by several short, radiating lines, giving it a sunburst or celebratory appearance.

Contact: Dr. Phil Tietjen <prtietje@ncsu.edu>